- Drug Czar Legislation. OGC has been working with OLL in formulating the Agency's response to a DoJ letter concerning our position on the "Drug Czar" legislation. The legislation, as drafted, represents the DoJ's position and has the potential for adversely affecting DCI's responsibilities for the coordination of intelligence collection and protection of intelligence sources and methods, his authority over the Intelligence Community budget, and equities regarding the assignment regarding Intelligence Community personnel.

- Jane Doe Litigation. The Agency has reached a tentative agreement for settlement of the litigation Jane Doe v. CIA and has recommended that the DoJ approve settlement of this case under terms that we believe are fair and which reflect a reasonable estimate of Ms. Doe's legal expenses in this matter and damages that she suffered as a result of her cancelled overseas assignment.

Office of Inspector General - No report.

Office of Comptroller

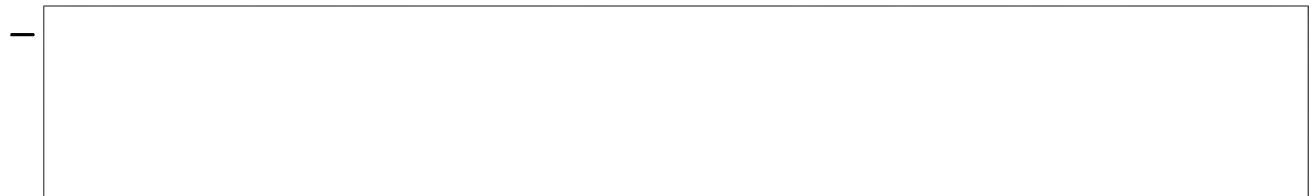

- Russ Neeley, the Agency's new OMB Examiner, will be provided a series of orientation briefings beginning next week.

Office of Legislative Liaison - No report.

Public Affairs Office

- The DCI had an off-the-record tour d'horizon with columnists Cord Meyer and Georgie Anne Geyer. Of special interest was Geyer's comment, similar to that made by U.S. NEWS & WORLD REPORT writers Bob Dudney and Orr Kelly several months ago, that the DCI is getting high marks around town for his successful efforts to rebuild the Agency. This indeed is a growing perception among correspondents and columnists in Washington.
- D/PAO lunched with NEW YORK TIMES correspondent Phil Taubman who, among other things, said he had been selected to be the TIMES next (in two years) correspondent in Moscow.
- After consulting with PAO, the White House Press Office (Bob Sims) protested to Jack Anderson about his two recent columns accusing the CIA of having cut off funding for the Miskito Indians, thus leaving them in the lurch as the Agency had done with the Kurds and Meo tribesman. Believe it or not, Anderson replied that he had forgotten that Congress had terminated the funding for the Contra program.
- PAO received a request last week through a SOVA analyst from two post-Doctorate researchers at Princeton University for digitalized data on population density in the USSR. The DI will provide the data directly, which is unclassified; they are to be used in connection with a study underway at Princeton concerning the impact of nuclear attack on the Soviets.
